HAWAIIAN DECLINE.

There is nothing more lamentable in the present status of the native Hawaiian people, than the fact that they are being pushed into the background in the real life of the nation. Strange races from opposite ends of the earth, imported into the country for contract laborers, partly at the expense of Hawaiians, are taking up land and cultivating it, learning trades and making a good living by them, opening trading shops and acquiring a competence therein, securing the best positions in operating the country's commercial fleet, and so forth. The natives are steadily moving down and out in all these branches of industry, and trade, even the very humblest. It is only recently that a large shipping concern sent to the South Seas for sailors to replace the natives in working its vessels. Meanwhile the natives go on going down to absolute wretchedness and ultimate extinction, amusing themselves on the descent by playing at soldiers. There are exceptions to this sad picture, at least enough to show that the exhibition might be the reverse, so far, at all events, as the Hawaiian's relations to the Portuguese, Chinese and Japanese are concerned.

Native Hawaiians of influence and foreigners who profess a kindly interest in the native race should take this state of affairs seriously and practically to heart. It is not too late, it is to be hoped, for the initiation of a movement for the betterment of the material condition of Hawaiians. A Hawaiian Industrial Association should be formed with as little delay as possible. There are many industries connected with agricultural development which the native would be master of from the start. Fruits, the cultivation of which he understands or would readily learn, have foreign markets open to them, in both fresh and preserved states, all the time. What is wanted is organization, with possibly a moderate investment of capital, for forthwith starting fruit farms and preserving factories all over the Kingdom, with native Hawaiians to work both. The association could also exert its influence in having young Hawaiians, whenever out of school, put to learn trades. It would also find a noble work in promoting the establishment of a system of industrial education in the Government schools.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Portuguese ladies are worthy of all praise for moving to wipe out the stigma of mendicancy from their colony. We bespeak the countenance and sympathy of the community for the "Portuguese Ladies' Benevolent Association."

When foreign residents get tired of being treated as intruders only tolerated for the tax-bearing wealth they produce, probably the first people they will get even with are the abandoned class of foreigners—the white kanakas—who have chiefly instigated the race prejudice now paramount among the ruling party of Hawaiians.

With present facilities of communication between Honolulu and Kapoia Park, the latter is too far away for holding a public show of any kind.

Therefore the public will commend the intention of the Agricultural Society's exhibition committee to obtain, if possible, a more convenient site for the stock show than the park. In this purpose the committee ought to have the benefit of suggestions or offers from outsiders who may be in a position to help in either of these ways.

The Advertiser notes a sudden and marked rise in the price of silver, and argues therefrom that it is gold and not silver which varies in value from day to day. While our contemporary fails to make this clear, it is welcome to its hopes of an international arrangement for putting silver on an equal footing with gold. Until that is done, however, it would be great folly for a country like Hawaii to have anything for a currency standard but the metal required to pay its debts abroad and its customs duties at home, which is gold.

The HERALD has attained a large circulation, chiefly among the best classes of Honolulu society. It is eagerly read by hundreds daily in all the respectable places of resort. One leading restaurant keeper has had to order four copies to satisfy the demand for the paper at his tables. Readers will see that the HERALD's influence is coming to be recognized by business men, in the steady growth of its advertising patronage. Merchants and mechanics will find it to their interest to get our advertising rates for any space required.

A very simple form of municipal government for Honolulu would doubtless be a vast improvement on the present condition of things civic. In discussing the matter practically the reformed systems lately adopted in Nashville and Memphis, Tennessee, mentioned in the HERALD the other day, should be kept in view. The necessary addition to taxation would be as nothing to the almost certain benefits from the change, provided city taxpayers were not compelled to pay as much as ever to the general Government, besides what the civic establishment would cost them.

Flesh is Grass.

Mrs. Simpson Hendricks, the landlady, had just remarked that all flesh is grass, when Dumley, who is even with her board, and therefore inclined to be captious, fat called upon to correct her.

"Some flesh may be grass, madam," he said, struggling with his knife and fork, "but it occurs to me that this particular piece of flesh cuts more like b-baled hay."—Harper's Bazar.
